

Grayling Schools To Graduate 27

COMMENCEMENT NEXT WEEK

Another school year is about to pass into history and 27 young men and women are about to finish their high school careers and stand on the brink of new fields to conquer. Commencement is a great event in the lives of these thirteen girls and 14 boys.

That their efforts are crowned with success is obvious for Grayling school is known for its high scholarship and thoroughness. Especially is that so for the past several years. Supt. Poor is devoted in his school work just about every day in the year. Under his administration Grayling schools have run along smoothly and progressively and without friction anywhere. Prof. Hamilton, manager of the Bay City Business college recently in speaking before the local Kiwanis club remarked that Grayling school was one of the best five schools that he visits, giving Mr. Poor credit for having kept the school up to that high standard.

Commencement is a glad day for the members of the graduating class and also a sad day for it means the separation of a group of young people who have worked, struggled and played together for several years while friendships become steadfast and usually school days linger longer in one's memory than any other period of one's life.

It is always with considerable pride and satisfaction on the parts of teachers, members of the school board and citizens generally that a new group is graduated, and is a privilege that every deserving graduate appreciates. School has done much for these boys and girls and now it will be a pleasure to look forward as we watch the progress they make in life—the paths that are chosen and the successes achieved.

Class Day exercises will be held on Wednesday evening. On Thursday evening will be the Commencement program when Dean C. C. Barnes of C.S.T.C., Mt. Pleasant, will address the graduates.

We are sure the citizens of Grayling join with us in extending warmest and most sincere congratulations to the members of the class of 1937.

The theme of the sermon will be "The Invincible Life."

T. Marston Kiwanis Guest Speaker

Always a most welcome visitor to Grayling is Thomas Marston, secretary and manager of the East Michigan Tourist association. Yesterday he was the guest speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon.

He gave just a friendly talk and explained some of the eccentricities of the work of the Association he so ably represents.

While in some former years the Association has had many struggles in keeping up its functioning, at this time everything is going along nicely. He is very modest in his claims for the great increase of the tourist business in Eastern Michigan, still we all know that the E. M. T. has put such a way that vacations in Northern Michigan are beginning to be an almost universal demand by people of other states. Right here in our own community the fame of our AuSable and other rivers and lakes has been greatly advanced by the effort of the E. M. T. Winter sports too has been publicized in a big way by Mr. Marston and his associates. We will never be able to repay this organization for the things they have done for Grayling.

With Mr. Marston was Mr. Norman Frey, official photographer for the E. M. T.

Lansing—The old-fashioned saloon bar, symbol of conditions that led to national prohibition, may return in Michigan.

By a vote of 70 to 20 the House of Representatives passed an amended liquor control bill that permits drinking while standing at a bar. The amendment was defended by Rep. Harry Glass (D) of Grand Rapids who said he could see no sense in legislating the question of a drinker's posture—standing up or sitting down. Liquor by the glass would be permitted locally by a city ordinance or referendum vote.

While loosening present restrictions against drinking at a bar, the house bill tightens up on the sale of beer to minors—raising the age limit from 18 to 21.

The measure is now in the Senate.

Calling Names

The House of Representatives is overwhelmingly democratic. The Senate is republican by a hair.

Yet a condition continues whereby administration measures are passed easily through the Senate, but are bogged down in the House.

An insight into a lack of harmony in majority ranks was afforded a few days ago when Rep. John Hamilton, Detroit builder, charged that certain members of the House labor committee had "sold out" to industrialists in maneuvers over an occupation disease bill. He directed his remarks in the general direction of Rep. Joseph Martin, Detroit engineer, who had raised a question why Hamilton had threatened to offer "60 amendments" to the bill.

A lobbyist for leading industrialists is reported to have advised friends that one representative sought $300 apiece for seven legislators—but "the ghost didn't walk."

The upshot of the sensational bribe talk was that the administration leaders clamped the lid down tight. . . and the Hittite-Burke occupation disease bill was passed exactly as it had been drawn up in the Senate.

Civil Service

Many democrats in the House are vigorously opposed to the governor's civil service bill which sailed through the Senate with comparative little opposition and which is still waterlogged in the House state affairs committee.

The Senate measure, as prepared by Professor Pollock of the University of Michigan, provides for certain educational qualifications that give preference to persons who have received a high school or college training. Of the present 12,000 state employees, 46 per cent have an eighth grade diploma; 32 per cent high school diploma; 16 per cent college diploma; 4 per cent less than eighth grade, and 2 per cent undetermined.

Opponents of the measure declare that 6,240 employees stand to forfeit their jobs under the Pollock job preference plan in civil service.

From White House

That a very close relationship has existed since Jan. 1 between the White House at Washington and the executive's office in Lansing has been generally known. Gov. Murphy was in frequent contact with President Roosevelt during the sit-down strike crisis. Murphy's success in settling labor trouble that threatened to become a national problem of equal seriousness to the 1933 bank moratorium epidemic has started tongues wagging that the Michigan governor is slated to succeed Madam Perkins at Washington as Secretary of Labor.

Hence a legislative record desirable to labor leaders takes on a new significance at Lansing. This explanation is given as the reason why the governor yielded to labor in modifying his original labor relations bill. Modifications would outlaw company unions, grant sole bargaining rights to any union having a majority membership, eliminate a requirement of notice in advance before calling a strike, and restrict the injunction power of the court in the matter of property rights.

A recent illustration of the White House-Lansing understanding is seen in the state administration's failure to provide an appropriation bill for the New York's 1939 World Fair. President Roosevelt vetoed an appropriation for the New York show at the very time that a New York fair representative was trying to sell leaders on the merit of a legislative appropriation.

Results: No appropriation bill was introduced in behalf of the eastern show, but a measure was sponsored by Rep. Francis Morley (D) and Rep. Carl DeLano (R) appropriating $100,000 for the San Francisco exposition also in 1939.

Fine County Parks

The foresight of Iron County in preserving strips of timber along scenic highways and in acquiring scenic spots for county parks has led to the development of the finest county park system in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Purchasing roadside timber along highways was started in Iron county as far back as 1918. Today wide strips of forests along scenic roads are a source of enjoyment to tourists and of pride to residents.

At Fortune Lake the government's CCC camp is spending around $300,000 annually for park development.

Forest Fires

Radio and the airplane will be mobilized in 1937 in preventing forest fires in the heavily wooded Upper Peninsula.

Enrollees in the CCC camps of the Hiawatha and Marquette forests are being trained by U. S. forest service experts in the use of field radio sets.

Ground crews will be directed from observations taken in an airplane and relayed by radio.

The U. S. Forest Service will occupy and use 14 lookout towers in the U. P. this year. . . nine to be manned by CCC enrollees.

Memorial Day Was Duly Observed

Although the weather was extremely warm Memorial Day, the thermometer registering 97 degrees in the shade, the various patriotic organizations, Boy Scouts, and school children braved the heat and turned out to pay tribute to America's war dead. As is customary American Legion Post 106 arranged the services, issuing appropriate printed programs, and carried out their ceremonies as scheduled.

Heading the parade were the colors carried by American Legion members followed by the drum and bugle corps in full uniform, and other ex-service men. In the second section was the Grayling band, Boy Scouts, members of Moose Lodge, and school children carrying flags. The procession first went to the city park on the banks of the AuSable river and scattered flowers and held services in memory of ex-service men who died at sea. Marching from the city park the procession went to Elmwood cemetery and held services at the mound, midst crowds of interested friends. Following a selection by Grayling band, prayer was recited by the Post chaplain, followed by a few appropriate words by A. J. Nelson, acting post commander. Following benediction, the salute was given and in the distance taps resounded, closing the day's ceremonies.

Previous to the services in Grayling, the American Legion and drum corps went to Frederic and held services there.

Legionnaires To Be Traverse City Guests

Legionnaires of the 10th District will invade Traverse City on Sunday, June 20th, for the annual tri-district convention and 9th district meeting. Word received from Albert Peck, convention chairman, indicates the a rousing full day is in store for the delegates and members.

Dinner at 1:00 will be a picnic affair with coffee and sandwiches furnished by the Traverse City Post. At 12:30 there will be a parade and inasmuch as the route is a short one and paved all the way, every post is urged to bring their bugle corps.

Entertainment will be plentiful as is evidenced by the advance program. Dancing at the We-que-tong Club House, on the shores of Grand Traverse Bay. Games for the children, and a wide variety of other sports including deep sea fishing in the bay.

The tri-district business meeting is scheduled to be held at the club house at 10:00 a. m.

POPULAR GRAYLING COUPLE WED IN INDIANA

Of interest to hosts of friends will be the announcement of the marriage of Miss Marian Reynolds, daughter of Mrs. James Reynolds, Sr., and Mr. Ronnow Hanson, son of Mrs. Hansine Hanson of this city.

They tell us they have not breathed a word of their secret to even their most intimate friends, so no doubt this will be received as a pleasant surprise. It was the last day of last year to be exact December 31st, that the young couple hid themselves away to Angola, Ind., and there were united in marriage by Rev. N. E. Smith of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson are among Grayling's popular young people. The groom, who was born in Grayling, attended Ferris Institute after leaving school and for the past several terms has been the efficient County Register of Deeds. The bride has lived in Grayling since a child, graduated from Grayling High School with the class of 1925, and for several years has clerked in the Cooley Gift Shop.

For the summer Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will be at their cottage on Eagle Point, Lake Margrethe. At the present time they are spending a few days in Detroit, but on their return they will be besieged with congratulations and best wishes of their friends, which includes just about everyone in the community.

Ladies Golf Club

The regular semi-monthly golf and bridge party for the Ladies Auxiliary of the Golf club was given Wednesday.

The golfers played in the morning, with the high score going to Miss Jayne Keyport. At twelve-thirty a pot luck luncheon was enjoyed followed by bridge, the high score being held by Mrs. Esbern Hanson.

Sunday, June 13th, a pot luck dinner with the gentlemen will be given at one o'clock. In the morning a golf tournament will be held.

Mrs. Charles Moore is a new member of the Auxiliary.

SCHOOL STUDENTS AIDED BY NYA

Among the 12,878 needy high school students in Michigan who received part-time employment by the National Youth Administration during the past school year are approximately 1,600 students who will graduate within the next few weeks.

Enabled Many to Complete Their Education

Many of those graduating would have been unable to complete their education and would have left school if it had not been for the part-time work provided by the Student-Aid Program of the National Youth Administration, according to C. R. Bradshaw, State Director.

County Benefited From Program

In Crawford County, 24 high school students were given part-time work on projects designed and supervised by local school authorities themselves. Students receiving this part-time employment were selected entirely by the school officials on the basis of need.

The number of students aided in Crawford county towns and cities is as follows: Frederic, 17; and Grayling, 7.

Accomplish Many Kinds of Work

The work assigned these students consists of such varied types as beautification of school grounds, clerical work and correcting papers, library assistance, lunch room service, repairing furniture, keeping attendance records, and maintenance of playgrounds. For this work high school students received an average of $6 a month.

Teachers have had more time to devote to teaching during the past year because NYA students in Crawford county schools have taken much of the detail work off their hands. In addition to the small allowance given for this work, students are receiving valuable training in correct work habits.

A total of 12,878 high school students were aided during the 1936-37 school year in 750 Michigan schools.

Colleges Take Advantage of Aid

In addition to the high school program, practically all of Michigan's colleges and universities availed themselves of the part-time employment provided by the NYA for needy college students.

There were 5,016 undergraduate students and 352 graduate students given NYA employment in 42 colleges.

For this work students received an average of $15 a month. As in the high school program, college officials select the students that are most in need of this employment, and design and supervise the projects on which they work.

FORD VS. UNION

There will undoubtedly be raised a great protest by the would-be saviors of the country against the Ford Motor Co., because they had the temerity to administer a sound thrashing to hired union organizers who trespassed on their property at Dearborn, Michigan, in an attempt to pass out handbills to Ford employees. We believe, however, that people should make a thorough investigation into the activities of this union before they jump to conclusions and offer them undeserved sympathy.

Mr. Ford has always had a record of paying his employees a better average wage than any other large industry. He firmly believes it is folly for his men to join any union in order to force him to improve labor conditions, which he keeps above the average without such coercion. Before Ford employees even consider this union membership, why do they not require the Union to show great improvements in plants already organized?

We believe in unions. They rightfully have a place in our industrial age. But we do not believe in the secret, unincorporated unions that are springing up in this country. There is no place in democracy for special-privileged individuals or groups of individuals from whom the government does not require an accounting, financial or otherwise.

The union in question admittedly poured thousands and thousands of dollars into the coffers of the party now in power in Washington. Michigan was one state where this vote was a prime factor in bringing about a victory. And Michigan was the first proving-ground chosen for their activities, because of their political power. These activities even defied the power of the Federal courts.

Today they are accusing the police of Dearborn of negligence of duty. Strange how badly the shoe fits when it is on the other foot.—Michigan Men and Affairs.

GAS STATIONS FURNISH TONS OF SOAP FREE

Chicago, May 31—Accustomed to elaborate attention at service stations, the motoring public today little realizes how large is the amount of time and supplies which dealers donate to their customers.

To motorists the services are free. To dealers they cost money but nevertheless are gladly given.

A study recently made of the free services supplied by 23,000 Standard Oil Company of Indiana dealers reveals that in a single year they supplied over half a million pounds of soap and more than 11,300 miles of paper towels while catering to the comfort and convenience of motorists who use their rest rooms.

Even to provide "Free" air to enable customers to travel more safely these operators had to have about two million dollars worth of equipment and use about one million dollars worth of electric current and manpower per year.

Free water, free checking of lights and batteries, free wiping of windshields and other services that the car owner has come to expect as a matter of course all representing something of a definite money value, but gladly given by the dealer as "Lagniappe," the thirteenth roll of the baker's dozen, the extra something "thrown in" on the trade of products for the customer's money.

A survey of these and other services rendered by Standard Oil dealers is now being made by motorists, at the suggestion of the Company, to determine which are the most popular in the public mind. Awards totaling $5,000 are to be paid by the Company to car drivers who submit reports considered by three judges to have the most merit. A like sum is to be paid to dealers who assist the winning motorists, making a total of $10,000 to be awarded. The survey closes June 15th.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

JERRY MUSKRAT NURSES A SORE TAIL

JERRY MUSKRAT was caught in a cruel steel trap. He was caught by his tail. It was a fortunate thing for him that it was by his tail and not by a leg. But right at this time Jerry couldn't see anything fortunate in it. In fact, to Jerry's way of thinking it was unfortunate.

Now Jerry Muskrat is much more at home in the water than on land, and his first impulse in

It didn't take him very long to realize that he couldn't pull himself free in the water. At first he was in such a panic of fright that he didn't use his wits at all. But after he began to realize that by struggling in the water he would simply drown himself, Jerry's wits began to work. He turned about and swam back to that old log and climbed out on it. There he squatted down and rested to regain his strength and get his breath.

"It's of no use for me to try to pull myself free by swimming," thought Jerry. "I'm a pretty strong swimmer but not strong enough to do that. Perhaps I can pull myself free up here."

So when he had rested, Jerry dug his claws into the old log and pulled and pulled. It seemed to him that he certainly was pulling his tail out by the roots. But it would be better to do that and have no tail at all than to lose his life. So he pulled, and pulled, and pulled. By and by it seemed to him that he felt his tail slip a little. That gave him courage and he pulled harder than ever.

Suddenly he pitched right over on his head, and at the same time there was a little snap behind him. He had pulled his tail free and the jaws of the trap had come together. You see, Jerry's tail tapers, and he had been caught not very far from the end of it. It was this which had saved him.

As soon as he felt himself free Jerry plunged into the water and swam over to his house. Not until he was safely inside his bedroom did he look at his tail. The skin had been torn by the jaws of that trap, and the end of his tail was raw and bleeding. It was dreadfully sore and ached. Jerry began to lick it very gently. For the rest of that day and the following night Jerry stayed right in his house and nursed that sore tail. But he had saved his life, so a sore tail didn't matter much.

ONLY CHANCE

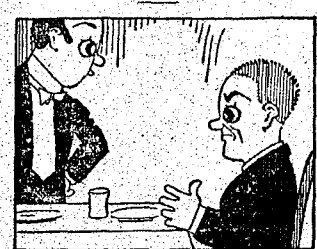

The curate prided himself on his oratorical powers. He was describing the downward path of the sinner, and used the metaphor of a ship drifting and going to pieces on the rocks.

A sailor in the audience was deeply interested.

"The waves dash over!" cried the curate. "Her sails are split! Her yards are gone! Her masts are shivering! Her helm is useless! She is drifting ashore! There seems no hope! Can nothing be done to save her?"

The sailor rose in his seat, his eyes wide with excitement. "Let go the anchor, ye lubber!" he shouted.—Birmingham Post.

NOODLES AND PUDDING

THOSE who enjoy noodles in various ways will find the following salad good and out of ordinary:

Noodle Ham Salad.

Take one cupful of egg noodles, one cupful of celery, two tablespoonfuls of chopped olives, one cupful of string beans, salt and mayonnaise or cooked dressing to taste. Cook the noodles broken into small pieces, until tender. Drain and chill, then add the remaining ingredients and season to taste. Serve on lettuce.

The following won the five hundred dollar prize for the best recipe using macaroni:

Lemon Surprise Pudding.

Cook one-half pound of macaroni until tender in rapidly boiling salted water. Drain and mix with the following ingredients: One cupful of milk, three eggs beaten, one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of shredded coconut, three tablespoonfuls of grapefruit, one teaspoonful each of nutmeg, cinnamon and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths cupful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Put into a well-buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until brown. Spread when done with lemon sauce, using the juice and rind of two lemons, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of boiling water and two eggs. Mix the dry ingredients, add to the water and cook slowly until thick, then add the remainder; beat until smooth. Spread this sauce over the top of the pudding and sprinkle thickly with the coconut.

Fruit sugars in both the uncooked fruits and in the jellies and marmalades are effective in furnishing an alkaline-ash reaction valuable to balance the acid-ash reaction of the cereal foods which play such an important part in the diet.

Stuffed Flank Steak.

Have a flank steak trimmed and scored. Mix one cupful of bread crumbs, one small onion chopped, one-half of a grated carrot, one-half cupful of chopped celery, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, one teaspoonful of sugar and salt and pepper to taste. Add one-third cupful of hot water or vegetable liquor to moisten. Spread this mixture over the steak, roll up tightly and tie firmly. Sprinkle with seasoned flour and brown in a little fat. Place in a covered baking pan and bake one and one-half hours, basting with butter and vegetable liquor three or four times during the baking. Serve with pan gravy.

Macedoine Salad.

Take two cupfuls of cooked rice, one cupful of peas; three tablespoonfuls each of minced celery and grated cheese, four tablespoonfuls each of pimiento and relish, one teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and serve on lettuce with french or mayonnaise dressing.

When fresh coconuts are in the market, keep some freshly grated coconut well sugared in the ice chest. Use it on salads, on custards as topping for cream pie and custard pie and as cake filling. It is so much tastier than the canned or package variety, which we welcome when the fresh nut is out of the market.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

RENEWING WATER PIPES

THERE are many sections of the country in which the water is of a nature that corrodes ordinary metals, or produces deposits in the pipes that in time clog them completely. Both of these effects are greatly increased when the water is heated. When trouble of either sort develops in the water pipes of a house, the only practical remedy is replacement.

As a general thing, the need for replacement first appears in the horizontal water pipes in the cellar. Corrosion will result in leakage, which is visible. Clogging shows by the reduced force with which water runs out of a faucet—when the flow from an upstairs faucet is reduced on the opening of a faucet downstairs.

When clogging is suspected, the water should be shut off and a pipe in the cellar disconnected at one of its joints. This requires two wrenches; one for holding the pipe, and the other, the connection. With the joint open, the interior condition of the pipe becomes visible. On making that examination, I have frequently found pipes so clogged that even a slender lead pencil would not enter. Under such conditions, the only practical remedy is to put in new piping. The deposit is too hard to be taken out by any method that would not be too expensive to apply.

If the material of the old pipes is not corroded, new lengths of pipe of the same metal can be put in. But when there is corrosion, the pipes should be of a metal that will not be attacked. The kind of metal that is proof against attack by the local water can be learned through inquiry among home owners, the owners of apartments and public buildings, and plumbers and steam fitters.

In many sections of the country, copper is resistant to the attack of local water. In the form of flexible tubing, it can be put in with little damage to floors and walls. This tubing comes in 60-foot rolls. It is sufficiently flexible to be pulled up through the walls alongside the old pipes, which are left where they are. A skillful plumber can put new piping in a house with little more disturbance than the cutting of small holes through bathroom walls.

Model Church in a Model Village

Even the workmen on ladders around this model church at Bekonscot, England, are models. The church is an exact reproduction in miniature of the projected memorial church to G. K. Chesterton, famous novelist who died last year. It measures 7 feet, 6 inches by 5 feet, and is the latest addition to the model village, complete with country clubs, stores and other buildings, that was opened on Good Friday. The toy village is often visited by children of the English royal family.

HAPPY DAYS IN THE GREEN FOREST

THESE were happy days in the Forest. At least they were happy for Lightfoot the Deer. They were the happiest days he had ever known. You see, he had won beautiful, slender, young Miss Daintyfoot, and now she was no longer Miss Daintyfoot but Mrs. Lightfoot. Lightfoot was sure that there was no one anywhere so beautiful as she, and Mrs. Lightfoot knew that there was no one so handsome and brave as he.

Wherever Lightfoot went Mrs. Lightfoot went. He showed her all his favorite hiding places. He led her to his favorite eating places. She did not tell him she was already acquainted with every one of them, that she knew the Green Forest quite as well as he did. If he had stopped to think how day after day she had managed to keep out of his sight while he hunted for her, he would have known that there was little he could show her which she did not already know. But he didn't stop to think, and proudly led her from place to place. And Mrs. Lightfoot also expressed delight with all she saw quite as if it were all new.

Of Course All the Little People of the Green Forest Hurried to Pay Their Respects to Mrs. Lightfoot.

Of course, all the little people of the Green Forest hurried to pay their respects to Mrs. Lightfoot and to tell Lightfoot how glad they felt for him. And they really did feel glad. You see, they all loved Lightfoot and they knew that now he would be happier than ever and that there would be no danger of his leaving the Green Forest because of loneliness. The Green Forest would not be the same at all without Lightfoot the Deer.

Lightfoot told Mrs. Lightfoot all about the terrible days of the hunting season and how glad he was that she had not been in the Green Forest then. He told her how the hunters with terrible guns had given him no rest and how he had to swim the Big River to get away from the hounds.

"I know," replied Mrs. Lightfoot softly. "I know all about it. You see, there were hunters on the Great Mountain. In fact, that is how I happened to come down to the Green Forest. They hunted me so up there that I did not dare stay, and I came down here thinking that there might be fewer hunters here. I would not be thankful to hunters for anything, but I am, truly I am."

There was a puzzled look in Lightfoot's face. "What for?" he demanded. "I can't imagine anybody being thankful to hunters for anything."

"Oh, you stupid!" cried Mrs. Lightfoot. "Don't you see that if I hadn't been driven down from the Great Mountain I never would have found you?"

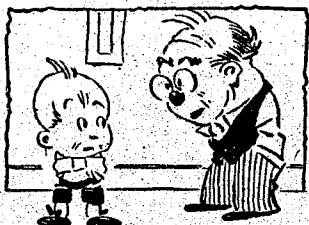

"You mean I never would have found you," retorted Lightfoot. "I guess I owe them hunters more than you do. I owe them the greatest happiness I have ever known, but I never would have thought of it myself. Isn't it queer how things which seem the very worst possible sometimes turn out to be the very best possible?"

A YOUNG IRISH RECEIPT

A raw young Irishman, lately recruited to the police force, was a witness in a robbery charge. "Did you notice any suspicious characters in the locality?" inquired the magistrate. "Sure, your honor, but only one man at that hour o' night. I axed him, 'An' what moight yer business be?' and he sez, sez he, 'I hope to open a bank here later on.'" "And so he did," dryly remarked the magistrate. "He opened a bank and stole 20,000 pounds." "There now, yer honor," said the policeman. "That man moight 'ave bin a thafe, but, begorra, he was no liar."—Birmingham Post.

It Looked Suspicious

When German troops were evacuating St. Mihiel territory in the last days of the war, the retreat in some sectors became virtually a rout, with the Americans closely on their heels and frequently in plain sight. One German doughboy, weary, but inwardly happy to be headed toward the Fatherland, tapped his sergeant on the shoulder and whispered: "Don't look now, but I think we're being followed!"—Foreign Service Magazine.

SAVORY DISHES

TRY small sausages partly cooked then dipped into fritter batter and baked.

Mutton cut into serving sized pieces, browned in fat, then boiling water added, and when nearly done, add finely cubed carrots and green peas. This makes a substantial meal. A small amount of meat may with vegetables make a good sized serving for the family.

Hungarian Sauerkraut.

Mix together one cupful of cooked rice, one-half pound each of chopped pork and beef, one egg beaten, one onion chopped and browned in butter. Season with salt and pepper. Brown three tablespoonfuls of flour, add a quart of sauerkraut and a little water, stir until well mixed. Make small sausages of the meat and lay in the kraut, fold the meat in it and simmer for an hour or more, closely covered or in a fireless cooker.

Chicken With Asparagus.

Cut a young fowl into six or eight pieces, brown and season well in a hot frying pan, adding two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add one cupful of stock and a bunch of asparagus. Cook for two hours at the simmering point, add flour and milk blended together and cook for the gravy.

Fish Salad.

Cut into bits boiled halibut, flake it with forks, season with lemon juice and arrange on a bed of lettuce in a salad bowl. A mixture of water cross with the lettuce is an improvement. Peel and boil three large mealy potatoes, beat light, adding salt, mustard and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, the yolks of two beaten eggs and a tablespoonful and a half of lemon juice, beating all the time. Pour this over the fish and serve.

Peas, fresh cooked green ones, a small chopped sour pickle and peanuts coarsely chopped or rolled with a rolling pin, make a good combination for a salad on lettuce with any dressing.

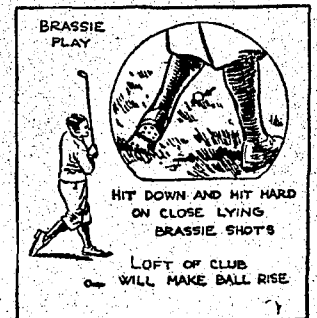

A few stalks of tender asparagus cut into a ring of green pepper or ripe tomato, with a spoonful of thick mayonnaise on lettuce, makes a most attractive salad. ©—WNU Service.

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

PLAYING THE BRASSIE

MANY golfers attempt to use a brassie as they do a driver, hitting the ball or attempting to hit in the square in the back method. This is the accepted method of striking a ball that is teed up, inviting such a stroke. However, where the ball is partially imbedded in the turf or lying deep down in the grass an altogether different swing is needed. Some players seem to think that the only way they can raise such a ball is by scooping it up, but a few attempts at this method should show them the fallacy of this procedure.

Obviously the clubface cannot lift the ball in this fashion because it would first have to dig under and back of the ball to do it. The simplest, most accurate method is to hit a descending blow that has plenty of power behind it. To the uninitiated this process often looks as if the player were going to drive the ball directly into the ground. However, the loft of the clubface slants in such a manner that the velocity of the clubhead when it contacts the ball will make it rise. Chances are with the spin such a stroke imparts, the ball will not roll far once it strikes the ground but it should travel quite a distance through the air. The important thing to remember is to hit down and hit hard. Any hesitancy here is likely to be reflected in a dubbed shot. © Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

Water Dog Is Fish, Reptile The "mud puppy," or water dog, is a cross between a fish and a reptile. It has four legs and can crawl on the bottom and cling to submerged objects.

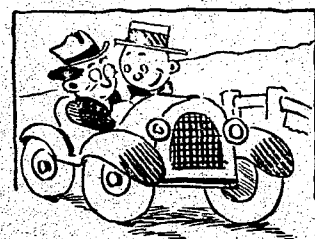

HE WAS RIGHT

The junior clerk informed the managing director that a lady wished to see him. "Is she good looking?" asked the boss. "Yes, sir—very." "Then show her up." After the woman had gone the managing director sent for the junior clerk. "You're a nice judge of beauty," he remarked scornfully. "Well, sir," returned the youth. "I thought she might be your wife." "She was," replied his employer. —Montreal Star.

Too Tempting!

He and his young wife were on a motor trip. She admired his anxiety about her comfort. "Are you all right?" "Quite, dear." "Cushions comfortable?" "Quite, darling." "Not being jolted?" "O, no, sweetheart." "Not in a draught?" "No, lambkin." "Then change seats with me."

IN COLORS

"So you got a colored chauffeur?" "Yes, Brown."

The Point of View

Two men occupying the same seat on a bus got into a conversation. "So you are a doctor, eh?" said one. "Yes," replied the other. "Well," said one, "in a way our work is alike. I'm a window washer and work on panes, too."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Winner

Old Maid (smiling)—Yes, I loved and won. Other One—How do you make that out? Old Maid—Oh, he jilted me and I had a lot more fun with the $50,000 heart balm he had to pay than I ever would have had with him.

One After Another

Owner—Here, what are you doing? Don't you know you're not allowed to take fish out of this water? Angler (three hours without a catch)—I'm not taking them out. I'm feeding them!—Kansas City Railwayman.

A Real Antique

Antique Dealer—I have here a very rare revolver. It dates from the time of the Romans. Customer—Why, the Romans didn't use revolvers. Dealer—That's what makes it so rare.—Chicago Tribune.

Decliste

You've already had leave, Ferguson, to see your wife off on a journey—for your mother-in-law's funeral—for your little girl's measles—Your boy's christening—what is it now?" "I'm goin' to get married, sir."

Make a Nice Dog House

Brown—What will you give me for my daughter's piano? Neuber—I'll give you $3 a cord for it, sawed, split and delivered in my woodshed.

Mrs. Fan—That movie show was shocking—the figures were practically nude. Mr. Fan—Yes; covered only with film.

Making Sure

A well-dressed woman walked into the fashionable milliner's shop and asked for the manageress. "I see from your advertisements," she said, "that you have just received two thousand hats from Paris."

"That is so, moddom," replied the manageress. "Good!" replied the woman, as she removed her hat. "I wish to try them on."

Colorful Remark

"Excuse me," said the dear old lady, "do those tattoo marks wash off?" "Can't say, lady," replied the old man. "I've never tried."—London Answers Magazine.

The only auto accident reported over the week end in this section was that of Thorwald Sorenson, whose car was wrecked three miles this side of Gaylord, when a tire blew out. Thorwald escaped with a few scratches, and some of the occupants of the other cars received minor injuries.

If the last week-end is an indication of the resort season just ahead of us, this will be the biggest resort season the north region ever had. The caravan of autos had a good start by Friday and continued in increased numbers as the day progressed. It seemed as tho the whole Southern Michigan and nearby states were emptying their populations into Northern Michigan. By Saturday it looked as tho Grayling was having a home-coming or Fourth of July celebration. The warm weather of that period made the north doubly appreciated. This region of natural beauty also is a most comfortable place during the warm seasons of the year. People have learned that and this healthful climate is most inviting in summertime.

An Inexpensive Hospital
Probably the most inexpensive hospital ever built in this country was erected in Cleveland during the War of 1812, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Shortly after arriving here with his men in May, 1813, Capt. Stanton Sholes ordered a group of his men to construct a hospital of logs for sick soldiers. According to the captain's own account, the hospital was "50 by 20 feet, smoothly and tightly covered, and floored with chestnut bark, with two tiers of bunks around the walls, with doors and windows and not a nail, a screw, or iron latch or hinge about the building." Its cost to the government was a few extra rations.

The Log Office Says

Interesting bits of news and comment about Northeastern Michigan gathered by the E. M. T. A.

As an experiment, the East Michigan Tourist Association is trying a new type advertisement in several of the metropolitan newspapers.

In the belief that many people have already decided upon Michigan for their summer vacation, the Association is listing, under headings of several districts, the names and addresses of its hotel and cottage renting members. This gives the information as to where to write for reservations and details, which it is assumed prospective visitors wish to secure.

The suggestion is expressed in a minor way as to the wisdom of selecting Michigan for the summer, also, the advice to write the Log Office for general information.

However, the larger part of the advertisement is given over to supplying names and addresses, as outlined above.

Bay City—To better acquaint Tour executives and special travel writers of metropolitan newspapers with the state's varied recreational appeal, Michigan's four Tourist Associations, the Automobile Club, the Hotel Association, Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit and Governor Frank Murphy will conduct a tour of Michigan, June 17-23.

Persons whose business it is to aid tourists in planning vacations and trips throughout the summer and fall will be guests. These writers and Tour Executives will be given a close-up view of Michigan's vacation playground, allowing them to better understand and describe what the state has to offer.

Hotels and communities are donating facilities and entertainment for the guests. Transportation will be furnished by the Greyhound Bus and East Michigan Motorbus Companies.

Opening the tour will be a banquet at the Hotel Statler, Detroit. The visitors will be luncheon guests of Henry Ford June 18. After a trip to the University of Michigan, the guests will have dinner with Governor Murphy at Lansing.

The tour will continue through central Michigan to Mackinac Island where an overnight stay will be made. The trip will include a boat ride through the beautiful Les Cheneaux Islands, a visit to the Soo Locks and a jaunt down the west coast of the state. It is believed the tour will aid in advertising Michigan.

Chesaning—Boosting Michigan's summer recreational appeal is not confined to resort owners and others serving the vacationist directly.

Harley D. Peet, a director of the East Michigan Tourist Association and the president of a meat packing firm, has large signs on his fleet of 50 trucks calling attention to Michigan's fine summer climate and recreational advantages. The trucks cover about 5,000 miles daily.

Base Ball

As It Should Be Played.

(Interviewing John Kobs, varsity baseball coach at Michigan State college, by Max Henkel, first string pitcher. First of a series of six articles).

"Much is said concerning the human interest side of baseball and major league competition, 'The psychological pressure that the coach is required to bring into play at times is difficult to explain. Some men just don't have the ability to relax. With the right kind of handling, many men develop ease and confidence."

He has met with great success at State, where he has been head coach of baseball and assistant coach of football during his 13 years at the college. At the request of college officials, he has assisted in preparing initial instruction in the diamond game.

Five succeeding articles will concern pitching, batting, infield play, outfield play and catching.

"The great prerequisites of base ball," says Kobs, "is relaxation. You have all seen major league pitchers 'who just couldn't work under fire'. And the shortstop who 'couldn't stop a ground ball for the life of him when the going was tough'. These men are examples of persons lacking relaxation, looseness and emotional control. They seldom last long in the majors unless they master their weakness in some way or another."

yet little has been said or done to encourage and actually teach youngsters the fine points of America's national game." That is the opinion of John Kobs, head baseball coach at Michigan State college.

"Aspirants desiring to play pro ball have to train themselves, and though experience is by far the best teacher, it should be supplemented by a little expert advice and instruction," says Kobs.

"See that first baseman over there? He has the makings of a fine player. He is just a freshman, has a good reach, good fielding sense, and bats close to 400, but unless he loosens up those hips and shoulders, he'll never get past the bench. See what I mean?"

WHAT HAVE CIGARS TO DO WITH BEER?

Nothing—except that first grade and seconds look pretty much alike. It's hard to judge quality by appearance.

Different brands of beer look a lot alike, too. It's the way they are made that counts.

Altes Lager is brewed to the private recipe of Louis W. Schimmel. This gives you a beer of highest quality and different from ordinary brews. The only thing like it is another bottle of Altes Lager.

News By Nosey

Last week I tried to tell you of what was going on in Shaw's Park. You have no idea of the activity further down the river; in fact this is confidential and I only am allowed to tell you a little of it. The gentleman in charge has given me permission to let you in on their first but yet really unfinished plans. The property owned by Mrs. Dodge Wilson will be platted and sold.

So many of you have been down there that it is not really necessary to tell you there are four cabins: Romeo, Juliet, Russell Inn, are three. Whether these old names will be kept will of course depend on the new owners. Then of course the little white cabin lived in so many years by Paul and Edna Feldhauser. They will make a four-car garage. This, we all know is a lovely location, and you can just bet a lot of folks will have nice summer homes there.

I don't need to tell you that the whole neighborhood is nice too. Whoever is lucky enough to own these cabins will undoubtedly meet them all. Mr. Corwin has a lovely cabin just above and across the river; as you pass it, note especially his fireplace chimney. To my mind it is one of the prettiest on the river. I do not know who built it.

Mr. and Mrs. Opland have the little white cabin by the bridge, and they are charming persons from Detroit. Their hospitality and Mrs. Opland's gift to entertain on the accordion are well known and appreciated.

Then just a short way up the river you meet Charlie Trosien, the well known and well liked bachelor.

A good many years ago Charlie bought this property from Paul Feldhauser, moved the old log barn down on the river front and made it into an attractive log cabin. Last year he built another cabin close to the main road. This I understand is a sort of guest house. Charlie entertains almost the whole summer. Henry Trosien and his wife from Adrian, just returned to their home Monday after spending the week end with Charlie.

You have no idea of the work Charlie has done to make his place so attractive. The bell which hangs under his summer house is the bell from the old log schoolhouse near Wakeley bridge; that's the famous bell that everyone wants to ring as they pass under it, but Charlie has a sign on it now: "don't ring, bird's nest." So we must be careful.

He has however a permanent guest for the summer; a robin has built her nest outside his cook house window, and there are four eggs, so it promises to be a busy season for Charlie, as he may have five steady visitors.

We have no idea who will occupy the Dodge Wilson property as yet, but I am sure they will be pleased with the location. When the work really starts I'll get some more information and pass it on to you.

Nobility of Mankind
Be noble; and the nobleness that lies in other men, sleeping, but never dead, will rise in majesty to meet thine own.

Pictured as she left court in Mineola, N. Y., is Gertrude Ederle, who occupied the world's spotlight a decade ago when she became the first girl to swim the English channel. With Miss Ederle is her attorney, Albert Meldon. The case was dismissed.
